O'FALLON WINS THE GOVERNOR'S HOMETOWN AWARD

The City of O'Fallon has been awarded the 2022 Governor's Cup, the highest honor from the Governor's Hometown Awards. Since 1983, the Governor's Hometown Awards program gives formal recognition to those who contributed to projects that improved their community's quality of life.

The award recognizes the work done by the O'Fallon Police Department and community volunteers in 2021 for the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics. In 2021 the O'Fallon Police Department raised $46,648 for Special Olympics Illinois with an estimated $15,500 worth of volunteer hours.

"This is such an honor for our City, Police Department, volunteers, athletes and everyone else involved," said Mayor Herb Roach.

Det. Nick Schmidt, Det. Adam Krack, and Sgt. Brian Gimpel represented the Police Department at the event. They were joined by Mayor Herb Roach, Council Member/ Volunteer Jessica Lotz, Administrative Intern Cameron Dewitt, Special Olympics Region J Director Justin Denning, Special Olympics athletes, Tony Hill, Faith Short and her mother Carolyn.

The Law Enforcement Torch Run is the single largest year-round fundraising movement benefiting Special Olympics Illinois. The Torch Run has two goals – to raise money and to gain awareness for the athletes who participate in Special Olympics Illinois.

The O'Fallon Police Department participates in several LETR fundraising events including the Polar Plunge, Burgers and Badges (Culver's), Texas Roadhouse Tip-A-Cop, T Shirt Sales (Schnucks), and BBQ's at Sam's Club. Since 1986, the Law Enforcement Torch Run has raised more than $59 million while increasing awareness of Special Olympics Illinois athletes and their accomplishments.

We are extremely proud of the amazing work our department and community volunteers do every year for Special Olympics. The impact they make in raising money, awareness and building relationships throughout the community is undeniable. While this award was given to the O'Fallon Police Department, we accept it on behalf of everyone who has supported the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics these many years. We couldn't do this without the support of our volunteers, schools, businesses, and community. This award is for all of O'Fallon.

6 Website Security Best Practices for Small Businesses

by The Hartford

<https://sba.thehartford.com/business-management/managing-risk/website-security-best-practices/>

Every day, small business owners confront more than their fair share of challenges. Cybersecurity is no exception. Small business owners must keep their companies secure online, from analyzing their risk to finding the right tools to mitigate it. You understand the need to protect your website from hackers, but as you get into the weeds of website vulnerabilities, you might find yourself confronted with complicated concepts and solutions. Even so, there are certain fundamental best practices to follow to improve your website's security.

Let's learn how to protect your data from loss or espionage and how to provide a hack-free experience to your consumers and clients to keep your business running smoothly! We've compiled this list of six website security best practices for small businesses that you can implement right now.

1. Update your software.

When it comes to your website's security, it's always a good idea to remain on top of the latest updates. This one is relatively simple, especially if you're using a website builder that takes care of software updates and security concerns. If you're using a platform like WordPress, though, you'll need to stay on top of things and run updates as required. You must upgrade your WordPress core software and any plugins you have installed. It'll become obsolete and expose your website to viruses, bugs and malicious code from hacker attacks if you don't.

2. Use strong passwords.

Your password is often the only thing that stands between a hacker and access to your valuable information. A security breach can take hours or even days to fix, and you don't want to squander that time. It's better to spend just 15-20 minutes updating strong passwords or creating new ones. This will go a long way toward keeping hackers out of your website.

Create a password with at least 10 characters. It should contain a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters, numbers and special characters. So, even if hackers use advanced tools, it will be more challenging to break in. Once you've got your new super-strong passwords, be cautious with them — don't share them, even with friends, and change them about once every quarter.

3. Encrypt with SSL.

Another thing you can do to protect your website is install an SSL (Secure Sockets Layer) certificate. You may not know it, but you constantly come across SSL when browsing the web — that's what gives the "S" in "HTTPS" and the padlock in the address bar.

Having an SSL certificate is essential if you're taking credit card payments, requesting passwords or sending data. SSL enables the safe transmission of sensitive information and helps to keep hackers from gaining access to your login credentials or other sensitive information. Data that isn't encrypted is at risk of being stolen by cybercriminals.

4. Choose a secure host.

Making the right decision when selecting a web hosting service is critical to the security of your website. High-quality website builders often include a free SSL with all plans. Make sure to pick a web host service that is aware of potential risks and is committed to keeping your website safe. In addition, your web host should back up your data to a distant server and make it simple to restore your data if your site is hacked. Select a web host that provides ongoing technical help whenever it is required.

If you need a more robust level of security, you'll have to pay for an advanced SSL certificate. These are available at various rates and may be obtained through web hosting services or domain registrars. Unless you're running a large online business or dealing with a lot of sensitive data, the free version of SSL should suffice.

5. Back up data.

Losing your data or, even worse, your customer's data could cost you a considerable amount of time and big bucks! While your web host service should backup its own servers, you should still back up your files periodically. Essentially, a backup is a duplicate of your website's data, including files, content, media and databases. Having a current version of your site saved ensures it can be restarted in the event of a disaster.

Make sure you're backing up important information and not trash. On your website, every database, application and plugin represents an additional point of access for hackers. Files, databases and programs on your website that are no longer in use should be removed from the server where they reside. Besides, you don't want to use up storage space with a bunch of old files.

6. Assess your weaknesses.

It is necessary to run online security scans regularly to identify and fix website and server vulnerabilities. Security scans for your website should be conducted routinely and after any changes or additions to your website's components. When determining how secure your website is, there are various free tools available on the Internet. These tools can be helpful for a quick check, but they won't catch all of your site's security problems.

If you don't have a technical background or the time to properly secure your website, establishing a partnership with a security agency might be a lifesaver. Engaging the services of an expert can offer in-depth analysis, explanation of the vulnerabilities on your website, and peace of mind. You've got a lot on your plate as a small business owner, and website security is no exception. When it comes to the more difficult tasks, hiring a professional may be more cost-effective than attempting them on your own.

You and your staff must constantly be attentive to securing your website, and these practical recommendations are only the beginning. Never stop looking for ways to improve the security of your website. Allowing hackers to triumph is not an option.

Medical Director Minute

With Dr. Ellen Middendorf

Is my dying loved one experiencing depression?

Grief versus Depression in the Hospice Patient

Identifying the difference between normal grief and clinical depression can be a challenging task in the dying patient, but a task that is extremely important. Emotional distress is natural and expected when one is experiencing a serious illness and confronting the end of their life. The differentiation between a normal and appropriate reaction to death and a more serious psychiatric disorder, such as major depression, can be clinically taxing.

When an individual learns that they have received a terminal diagnosis, “preparatory” or “anticipatory” grief is a normal reaction. This is defined as the type of grief that the terminally ill patient has to undergo in order to prepare themselves for their final separation from their world. It is commonly accompanied by withdrawal from family and friends, intermittent sadness, crying, anxiety and deliberating on the past.

This type of grief is a normal, not pathological, life cycle event. These individuals are still able to retain the capacity for pleasure and look forward to items in the near future. They may have passive wishes for death, but there are no intense, persistent suicidal thoughts. Their symptoms often come in waves.

When It's More Than Grief: Signs of Depression In contrast to the normal reactions of “preparatory” grief, healthcare professionals categorize major depression differently. For example, there is a persistent flat affect or overwhelming feelings of hopelessness, helplessness, and worthlessness. The patient has little interest in activities that normally brought them pleasure. They often have sleep and appetite disturbances. We do not typically see a disturbed self-esteem and grief together; however, it is quite typical in depression. Individuals with severe major depression may experience an active desire for early death and have persistent, intense suicidal thoughts. They may experience feelings of guilt and have no sense of anything to look forward to in the near future.

Clinically significant depression is likely more common, 25-77% based on the study, in the dying population than in the general public. However, depression is not an inevitable part of the dying process. Therefore, screening for depression should be carried out in all terminally ill patients, as treatment is widely available and typically successful. First and foremost, we must ensure that all uncontrolled symptoms are treated, particularly pain. After these symptoms are addressed properly, supportive psychotherapy and/or pharmacologic therapy for the depression should be initiated based on the clinical scenario.

At Hospice of Southern Illinois, we have an expert team of social workers and bereavement counselors. They work hand in hand with our interdisciplinary team to ensure that our patients and their families receive the emotional and psychological support that they need. We also have a full-time pharmacist on staff. Our pharmacist tailors medications to patients’ specific needs. Hospice of Southern Illinois has been your community, not-for-profit hospice for 40 years. We take great pride in partnering with your medical provider. There comes a time when compassionate care is the best care. Please visit hospice.org or call 800-233-1708 for more information.

In all stages of life, vaccinations are important. August is recognized as National Immunization Awareness Month, so HSHS St. Elizabeth’s Hospital reminds you that whether it is during pregnancy, as an infant or as an adult, the best way to protect your health now and in the future is by talking to your primary care provider and keeping up to date with your vaccinations. For COVID-19 vaccine appointments, call 1-844-216-4707.

Local Help Navigating Medicare

SHIP is your local State Health Insurance Assistance Program. SHIP provides unbiased help to Medicare beneficiaries, their families, and caregivers. Whether you are new to Medicare, reviewing Medicare plan options, or have questions on how to use your Medicare, SHIP can help.

When you contact your local SHIP, a certified counselor will give you one-on-one guidance based on your unique situation and needs.

SHIP is here to help with:

- understanding your choices
- how to enroll
- plan comparison
- coverage and costs
- paying for Medicare and prescriptions
- troubleshooting billing issues
- submitting appeals
- Open Enrollment (October 15 – December 7)
- referral to other resources

SHIP isn't just for people new to Medicare. Needs and options may change over time, so it's important to review your Medicare plan every year during Open Enrollment. SHIP can help you understand and compare options, so you can make choices that are best for you and your loved ones. We can also assist you with navigating access to providers, correcting billing issues, and filing complaints and appeals. With your permission, SHIP will work with Medicare directly to help solve problems on your behalf.

SHIP counselors are members of your local community who have been screened, trained, and certified as Medicare experts. Many are volunteers and they may even be one of your peers. They pride themselves on providing unbiased, confidential counseling. Their only priority is helping you make informed decisions about your care and benefits.

You can count on SHIP to be:

- Local
- Unbiased
- Confidential
- Knowledgeable
- In-person or virtual

SHIP is a national program with offices across the country. Depending on your area, you may know your local SHIP by another name, but the support it provides is the same.

Navigating Medicare can be complicated. SHIP can help.

SHIP is a national program of the Administration for Community Living, an operating division of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Learn more at ACL.gov.

SHIP is supported through state and federal partnerships that are not reimbursed by private health insurance plans or entities. SHIP is not paid per enrollment.

Our military affairs committee is selling “we love our military” signs.

The cost is $25 each. That pays for the signs and the profit goes back into military affairs committee. We will use the funds for welcome gifts for new airmen to the dorm, dorm dinners, spouse appreciation day, etc. Anything related to the base that we do.

You can purchase yours online:

<https://militarysigns.itemorder.com/shop/home/>

Then, proudly display it at your business or home during Veterans Day Week (November 10-17). But you don't have to wait for November - show your love for our military as soon as you get your sign!

After you place your online order, you will receive an email to pick up your sign at the O'Fallon-Shiloh Chamber of Commerce, 116 E. 1st Street, O'Fallon, IL during business hours, M-F, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
